For Immediate Release

Harrisburg, Pa. - Barley Snyder is pleased to announce it has added attorney Sarah C. Yerger to its growing roster of Harrisburg attorneys.

Yerger joins the firm one year after Barley Snyder opened its office in Pennsylvania's capital city. She brings 25 years of experience to the firm after working in both the public and private sector and is a member of the firm's Employment Practice Group.

"Barley Snyder's reputation as one of the strongest and most respected law firms in central Pennsylvania is well-earned," Yerger said. "I look forward to working with Barley's attorneys and staff, particularly the deep bench of seasoned attorneys in the firm's employment group."

Yerger has a distinguished resume that includes more than 13 years in the Pennsylvania Office of Attorney General, where she was a senior deputy attorney general. She moved into the private sector in 2013 where she regularly represents management in labor negotiations and litigation and counsels in employment laws and litigation.

A recipient of the "Super Lawyers" designation from 2014 to 2018, the Central Penn Business Journal also named her a "Woman of Influence" in 2017 and the Pennsylvania Bar Association awarded her its prestigious Lynette Norton Award for excellence in litigation in 2014. She received the Widener Law Commonwealth Excellence in Public Service Award in 2016, and is a member of the school's advisory board. She is also a former board member at the American Heart Association Capital Region Division and at St. Stephen's Episcopal School in downtown Harrisburg.

"Sarah's accomplishments and distinctions both professionally and in recognition of her community service speak for themselves," Barley Snyder managing partner Jeff Lobach said. "Sarah is highly regarded as an employment attorney and litigator in the Harrisburg area, and her credentials make her a perfect match for our growing employment practice in the capital region."
