For Immediate Release

York, Pa. - Barley Snyder is pleased to announce that attorney Chris Naylor has been named to the board of directors at the York Jewish Community Center.

"The JCC is one of the great community-based organizations of York County," Naylor said. "It's a place where everyone can feel welcome, and is an asset to the people of York. I'm very proud to be a part of this organization."

Naylor is a member of the Business and Real Estate practice groups at Barley Snyder and a life-long resident of York.

The JCC is a non-profit community center that welcomes the diverse population of York County, regardless of religion, financial or ethnic background. Included in a membership is the use of the fitness center, over 100 group and water fitness classes each week, lap and family swims, open gym use, family art and gym activities, a relaxation center complete with whirlpool, sauna and steam room, and discounts on fitness, social, and enrichment classes and programs, according to its website.
