For Immediate Release

York, Pa. - Barley Snyder attorney Katelyn E. Rohrbaugh has recently been appointed to the board of directors of TrueNorth Wellness Services.

TrueNorth Wellness Services is a non-profit, trauma-informed care agency that has been providing communities in Central Pennsylvania with a variety of resources for more than four decades including counseling, residential, emergency crisis and autism services as well as education and prevention programs, according to its website.

"I am really excited to get started and make a difference in an area that has always been a passion of mine," said Rohrbaugh. "It is rewarding to work with a trauma-informed agency which gives support to the community in a way that is proactive instead of reactive and will hopefully continue to support change in our community."

As a board member, Rohrbaugh will be responsible for fundraising efforts, supporting the organization through financial contribution, and devoting time to the organization through meetings, committees, and attendance at events. The firm has a longstanding commitment of having an attorney serve on the TrueNorth board. Barley Snyder attorney Jennifer McKendrick Stetter served on the board for six years prior to Rohrbaugh's appointment and recommended her for the role when her service ended.

"Katelyn will truly make a difference with her devotion to humanitarian work," said Stetter. "I am excited to see her grow on the board while representing Barley Snyder."

Rohrbaugh is an attorney in Barley Snyder's Litigation and Real Estate practice groups. A West York native, she is very active in her community, previously working closely with the Homeless Advocacy Project, Pennsylvania Innocence Project, and recently joining the board of directors of The Advantage Program of York.
