For Immediate Release

Malvern, Pa. - Barley Snyder is pleased to announce another successful completion of renovations to one of its offices. The firm's Malvern office has nearly doubled in size to accommodate clients and staff and increase accessibility for one of its fastest-growing locations.

The expansion of the firm's presence in Malvern allows for additional conference room space in another suite location. The firm currently occupies suite 110, totaling 3,329 square feet, which includes a conference room and a visiting office. The new suite 130 provides another 1,000 square feet and features three conference rooms, one of which functions as a hybrid conference room and visiting office. Additional amenities include a small lobby area, a coffee station and webcam technology.

"The recent expansion places our firm in an ideal position to build upon the success we've achieved in Chester County and the neighboring Greater Philadelphia area," said managing partner Jeff Lobach. "The added space will further elevate our IP practice while facilitating the use by other practitioners at the firm as we've seen an influx of business activity and litigation in the region."

Situated just a mile off exit 29 on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, the firm's Malvern location offers convenient access to the Main Line area and its surroundings.

"During my 20-plus year career at Barley Snyder, it has been a pleasure to witness the steady growth of our intellectual property practice and the firm as a whole," noted Salvatore Anastasi, partner and chair of the Intellectual Property Practice Group. "These recent renovations provide us with the space needed to accommodate additional attorneys to handle our expanding patent docket and better serve our valued clients across all practice areas."
