Reading, Pa. - Barley Snyder is proud to announce that associate EmmaRose Boyle has been named to board positions at two important Berks County organizations.

Boyle, who is based out of Barley Snyder's Reading office, took over as a member of the board of directors at Berks Community Television, the nonprofit corporation overseeing the live TV station dedicated to the Berks County community. She joined the board in July.

In August, she'll take on a board of directors role at Pennsylvania's Americana Region (formerly the Greater Reading Convention and Visitors' Bureau). The organization is dedicated to promoting tourism and visitation throughout Berks County.

"There are two organizations that directly affect the quality of life in the Berks County area," she said. "BCTV keeps people informed about their community, and therefore more aware of what's happening around them. Pennsylvania's Americana Region depends on the area being vibrant and inviting for the organization to thrive. When you put those two goals together, it makes for a beautiful region with an informed population. That's a fantastic combination for a sustainable community years into the future."

Boyle is a member of the firm's Business and Personal Planning practice groups and its Food & Agribusiness Industry Group.
