York, Pa. - Barley Snyder attorney Katelyn Rohrbaugh graduated as a member of the 2022 Leadership York class.

Leadership York's program is a nine-month leadership training course on York County history and community issues. Participants fine-tune their leadership skills, enhance their knowledge, and receive guidance in choosing and applying for a board, elected, or an appointed position. The program also provides access to opportunities for partnerships and business relationships.

"Leadership York has a strong history of impact in York County," Rohrbaugh said. "It has allowed me to create connections and inspired me to use my skills to volunteer in my community."

Rohrbaugh is an associate in Barley Snyder's litigation and real estate practice groups. She received her J.D. from the Drexel University Thomas R. Kline School of Law and her undergraduate degree from West Chester University. A native of West York, Rohrbaugh volunteers with the Homeless Advocacy Project and the Pennsylvania Innocence Project.
