Tel: (484) 318-2492

OVERVIEW:

Victoire Djuidje is a patent agent in Barley Snyder's Intellectual Property Practice Group. She assists clients with patent preparation and prosecution, prior art analysis, patentability assessments and other intellectual property matters.

As a registered patent practitioner before the United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO), Victoire helps inventors and businesses protect their innovations through the patent process. She brings a unique combination of scientific training and patent experience to her practice. Prior to joining Barley Snyder, she worked as a patent classification specialist, where she reviewed patent applications, conducted prior art research and analyzed inventions across a variety of technical fields. This experience provided her with valuable insight into patent examination processes and patent classification systems used by the USPTO and international patent offices.

Born and raised in Cameroon, Victoire earned her Bachelor of Science in Physics from Temple University. During her time at Temple, she participated in scientific research and laboratory work involving computational physics, atomic physics and solid-state physics. She also served as president of the university's Society of Physics Students.

Victoire is fluent in French and conversational in Spanish. Outside of the office, she enjoys cooking and decorating for parties.
